Cuba: It's Complicated

Saturday April 15th 1:00pm

A Travel Presentation featuring People, Photographs, by Pan by Nestor Gil. The words 'It's Complicated' become something of a mantra when traveling across the island of Cuba.

In 2015, artist and academic Nestor Gil took a circuitous route from La Habana to Santiago de Cuba over the course of 12 days documenting the journey across the island in photographs with special attention to la gente, the people. In 2017 he returned for three weeks, traveling to Camaguey and Trinidad de Cuba before looping back to La Habana.

During this presentation, he will share images and stories from these journeys to examine the myths and misinformation in our popular imagination rendered by decades of conflict between Cuba and the United States. Life for people in Cuba is indeed complicated, as rich with struggle as with joy.

Gil resides in Easton, Pennsylvania, where he is on the faculty of Lafayette College.
